Station is right on track

New Crossrail funding deal agreed

THE royal borough has won an eight-year campaign to secure a Crossrail station at Woolwich.

by Dick Townsend-Smith

Details of a funding package to fit out a station were announced in a ministerial statement laid down in the House of Lords last week.

Councillor Chris Roberts, Leader of the Royal Borough of Greenwich said: "I cannot overstate just how important this is for Woolwich and the borough as a whole. It is absolutely critical in cementing the regeneration of this area and it will give our businesses, residents and investors the best possible opportunities for the future. It's taken a huge effort, commitment and a very clear vision to bring Crossrail to Woolwich and I am very grateful to all of those who have worked with us to make sure this deal was secured.

"In 2018 we will see two brand new Crossrail stations open in the Royal Borough, in Woolwich and at Abbey Wood - and we are absolutely thrilled at that prospect and the huge benefits they will bring to our borough and its residents."

He added: "It means there will be six trains per hour connecting Woolwich to Tottenham Court Road in just 14 minutes."

PJ NOTTLE, ELTHAM: 'With the decline of the bee it was lovely to see one in the garden'

Thirst is no walk in the park

WHERE have all the drinking fountains gone? Why have they not been reinstated since the Olympics? The park has been returned back to normal except for the drinking fountains. If you need a drink and you are at the Blackheath end of the park you have to use the loos for a drink which is not always pleasant. The fountain which was at the top of the park has been removed for the Olympics. This one also had a drink for the dogs. We are all encouraged to get fit and use the park to walk run etc. We also need water to drink!

Gina Little, Greenwich
● THE Royal Parks replies: "Greenwich Park has three water fountains, two of which are working as normal. The third, in front of the cafe, has been removed while new pipework is installed.

Path of rubbish gives a bad impression

I READ with pride all the articles regarding Greenwich and the added tourism we have gained since the Olympics - so it saddens me to see that the Thames footpath and Woolwich parks along the route is terribly neglected when it comes to regularly emptying the bins. The warm weather has obviously encouraged more people along this area-with picnics etc so has heightened the need for more regular checks and collections. I've tried ringing the council offices and Cleansweep to report - but gave up after hanging on to hear a recorded message telling me they were busy and to try again. Shaming them in your paper may have more effect! Here's Hoping!

Samantha Hicks, Greenwich

● APOLOGIES that the cleanliness of the path was not up to expected standards. In addition to our staff cleaning and emptying bins we also have staff and an external organisation checking street cleanliness across the borough. We agree that the scenario you describe is probably due to the current heatwave. However, our various departments will work together to improve the situation. Sorry you had difficulty in getting through on the phone and we're glad you found a way to feed in your comments through GT.

Paint cycle lane blue, before air turns blue

SHARED PATHWAY: signs permit cyclists to use the pavement

ANOTHER month, another brush with 'the law'. I am so tired of being told off by the police for riding my bike on a pavement I am allowed to be on. Why can't the 20-strong squad of bully-boy bobbies who spot-check vehicles by the Blackheath Tea Hut gen-up on that stretch of shared-use pavement at the top of Greenwich Park on Charlton Way. If the police refuse to take eye tests, wear glasses or at least look up at the big blue signs with a person AND a bike on (pictured), the only solution is surely to paint the pavement blue like the new cycle routes on Woolwich Road. Why can this not be done? It would prevent animosity from members of public and more red faces in the Force.

Alan Little, Blackheath
● OFFICER Tom Lee from the Safer Transport team replies: "We are sorry to hear about what happened and that, perhaps, our actions have caused some frustration. There are dual marks on some roads which show where you can cycle and I will remind officers of this. The Safer Transport team works to promote safe cycling practices across the borough. I would be happy to discuss this matter with Mr Little or anyone with concerns on cycle matters via email STT.Greenwich@met.police.uk or by phone on 020 8284 9865."

FRIENDS OF MARYON & MARYON WILSON PARKS

PRIDE OF PLACE: Maryon Park Friends meet to celebrate their award

GREENWICH has some of the best parks and open spaces in the country, and that's now official, after the borough secured Green Flag awards for 15 of its parks.

New for this year are Eaglesfield Park and Maryon Park. They join the green-flagged hall of fame that also includes Avery Hill, Blackheath (which is jointly awarded with Lewisham), Charlton, East Greenwich Pleasaunce, Eltham Parks North and South, Fairy Hill, Horn Park, Sutcliffe Park, the Tarn and Well Hall Pleasaunce. The achievement follows last year's haul of 13 flags after a pledge by the royal borough to secure at least 12 green flag awards, as part of its Olympic legacy.

The awards are made by environmental charity Keep Britain Tidy to recognise and reward the best parks and green spaces across the country. A Green Flag flying overhead is a sign to visitors that the space boasts the highest possible standards, is well maintained and has excellent facilities.

The awards were presented to 12 borough-run parks and are a tribute to the many Friends of Parks groups which volunteer their time to make them attractive and valuable assets to the community.

Community Green Flags have also been awarded to three spaces managed by community groups. These include the Slade Ponds and Plumstead Common Nature Reserve, both managed by Plumstead Common Environment Group and Twinkle Park, managed by the Twinkle Park Trust.

Terry Powley, chair of the Greenwich

Parks Forum, said: "The two new awards, and the confirmation of the existing Green Flag awards, is a tribute to the continuing enthusiasm and dedication of the Friends of Parks groups, in partnership with the council."

Cllr Maureen O' Mara, the borough's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "A Green Flag award provides national recognition for the hard work and dedication of all the parks managers, staff and volunteers who have helped to create these fantastic places for all to enjoy."

TOWN LANDMARK: how the new station might look

Bringing Crossrail to Woolwich is the most important decision secured for the area in generations. By vastly improving connectivity to the rest of London, it will unlock huge potential, secure better access to existing and emerging job markets for local residents and will stimulate inward investment in the town.

It followed council-led negotiations between Berkeley Homes, Transport for London and the Department for Transport and means the station will be delivered at no cost to Greenwich council tax payers.

A Crossrail station for Woolwich was not part of the original project and the line was scheduled to run under the town without stopping. But the royal borough fought hard for a Woolwich stop backed by independent research which proved that a Woolwich station would deliver greater regeneration and job creation than any station on the entire line.

The council's campaign for the inclusion of a station at Woolwich was supported by local MPs, businesses and the community.

The Woolwich station is due to open in 2018. The route will serve 37 stations, and run 72 miles from Maidenhead and Heathrow in the west through 13 miles of tunnels below central London, to Shenfield and Abbey Wood in the east.

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 –
SECTION 14(1)
TEMPORARY ROAD CLOSURE – COBBETT ROAD

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the Royal Borough of Greenwich has made an Order to accommodate sewer repair works in Cobbett Road. The effect of the Order will be to temporarily prohibit vehicles from entering, exiting, proceeding or waiting (including waiting for the purposes of loading or unloading) in Cobbett Road at its junction with Rochester Way.
2. The above restrictions will only apply at such times and to such extent as shall be indicated by the placing of the appropriate traffic signs. Vehicular access to properties affected by these works will be maintained whenever possible subject to the extent and operations of the works.
3. Whilst the closure is in operation, the alternative route for vehicles will be via Well Hall Road and Dickinson Road for northbound traffic and via Winqwars Road for southbound traffic.
4. The Order will come into force on 30th July 2013 and will continue in force for up to 18 months, or until the works have been completed, whichever is the sooner. However, it is expected that the works will be complete by 20th December 2013.
5. Queries concerning these works should be directed to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's Directorate of Regeneration, Enterprise & Skills on 020 8921 5759.

Local people raise funds for food bank

CHARITABLE locals did their bit for the needy by donating more than £270 to the Greenwich Food Bank, writes Grace Lipski.

The food bank is part of a nationwide network which provides emergency rations to people in crisis.

It is supported by the Trussell Trust and runs in partnership with churches. Church members and young people from St Nicholas Church in Kidbrooke ran fundraising activities to raise cash for the cause, including car washes, cake sales, an entertainment evening with music, comedy and quizzes.

Donations from local people helped boost the profits for the fund.

They also gave non-perishable food items included UHT milk, tinned tomatoes, puddings, tea bags, tinned meat and fish.

Volunteers are still needed to help sort and pack food into emergency boxes, driving, fundraising and to be part of the welcome centres to listen and signpost clients for further support.

Donations can be given at different points around the borough including St Nicholas Church, the Eltham Centre and the Waterfront Leisure Centre with two more drop-off points planned to open in the future.

Vicar Tim Linkens said: "Our church, St Nicholas is celebrating its 60th anniversary this year, and as part of the celebrations we decided to support the work of the Greenwich Food Bank and in particular for our young people to take the lead in promoting this work. "Help is always needed and training and support is given for each role."

IN FULL SWING: an artist's impression of how the swing bridge across Deptford Creek will look when it is complete

Bridge on river quay

Green light for Thames walkway

A PEDESTRIAN bridge over Deptford Creek has been given the go-ahead by the council's planning board.

The swing bridge at the junction of Glaisher Street and Riverside Walk, will be 43 metres long and connect Greenwich Reach to Millennium Quay.

The planning department approved it at their July 9 meeting after considering nine letters of objections and 36 letters supporting the plans.

The bridge will be built by Galliard Homes as part of its development of flats on the east side of the creek. A timeframe for the build has yet to be finalised.

The swing bridge will be 3.6 metres wide and be high enough to allow vessels to pass underneath while remaining closed. When opened the one-part bridge swings onto the bank. Stairs and access ramps will be available on both sides of the creek.

When open the bridge will occupy the existing terrace on Greenwich Reach.

By George...it's baby Mauraj!

THE Queen Elizabeth Hospital played its part in the royal birthday, when it delivered 10 babies on July 22 - the day that Prince George was born.

Baby Mauraj Singh was one of them. Proud dad, Kamal Singh, 27, told GT: "It was amazing that he was born on the same day as George."

"My mum was at the birth, and when Mauraj was born the nurses joked to her, 'Queen, here's your prince!'"

Mauraj weighed 5lbs 11oz and was born at 8.40pm.

Fete clickety-clicks for bingo caller

IT was clickety-click at the Roberts Close retirement flats in New Eltham following the fund-raising summer fete organised by the Community Association of New Eltham (CANE). More than £700 was raised at the fete attended by around 500 people in the grounds of New Eltham library, and £150 of it will pay for a new microphone for the bingo caller at the sheltered accommodation. Money raised at community events swells the coffers of CANE's 'Community Chest' and its 'Helping Hands' fund. They help support needy and deserving local organisations. Each month £100 goes to the Greenwich Food Bank. Other donations this time have gone to the Guides, and to help set up a children's chess club. CANE runs its coffee bar and social activities at the library, including short mat bowls. Sue Killick, community centre manager for nine years, told GT: "We are open to all, and everything we do is run by volunteers. This year we had crafts, games and a birds of prey display. The Mayor, Cllr Angela Cornforth, agreed to open the fete after she was invited by Anne Read, who co-ordinates the volunteers' rota and was recently awarded the British Empire Medal for services to the community."

16 months for identity thief

Woman jailed for public fund fraud

A WOMAN has been jailed for 16 months for using false identities to steal public funds totalling £154,000.

Sharon Murray - also known as Sharon Semedo-Miranda and Gbemisola Oduyemi - pleaded guilty at Woolwich Crown Court after an investigation by the council's audit and anti fraud team.

She was given 16 months for each of the six offences to run concurrently - which means she'll serve a total of 16 months - when she appeared at Woolwich Crown Court on July 11.

Investigators had identified several links between 'Sharon Murray' of Villas Road, Plumstead and 'Sharon Semedo-Miranda', who had been living in Chalcombe Road, Abbey Wood, and suspected they were one and the same person.

The court heard Sharon Murray had become a council tenant in Villas Road in 2002 and provided a UK passport to support her identity. It showed that she had been born in Preston in 1969. She then started claiming benefits for the next eight years.

The fraud team discovered there was a recorded birth for Sharon Murray in Preston in 1969 but that her identity had been hijacked and the real Sharon Murray knew nothing of her namesake who had been living in Plumstead.

Enquiries into the identity of Sharon Semedo-Miranda found that she had been born in 1975 and had been claiming Housing Benefit from Bexley Council at Surlingham Close, Thamesmead, since March 2010.

In March this year, police and fraud team officers went to Surlingham Close address of Sharon Semedo-Miranda. A search found a UK passport and a UK birth certificate in the name of Sharon Murray in her freezer, along with other documents including her bank account details which she had used to claim benefit fraudulently in both names. It was also revealed that she had also claimed benefits from the Department for Works & Pensions and a student loan.

She was arrested and her true identity was confirmed to be Gbemisola Oduyemi. She was charged with six fraud-related offences relating to the use of false identities and for the loss of public funds totalling £154,000. This included £20,578 she had falsely claimed in housing benefits from the council.

As the school gates close at the end of another academic year, GT looks at some of the projects and initiatives which have been helping to enhance children's learning and enjoyment of school

New lessons in learning

EVERYONE'S a winner at Willow Dene special school where pupils demonstrated the values of London 2012 for their school sports day.

The day was themed around stories the children had been reading, and the activities around movement skills. They included setting up an outdoor area like a seaside, with paddling pools, deckchairs and towels. There were also skipping, parachute games, kurling and football at the school in Swingate Lane, Plumstead.

Year 5 pupil Ella said: "It's just like the Olympics, you just have to try your best and it doesn't matter if you win or lose as long as you are kind to your friends and happy."

PE co-ordinator Wendy Luttrell said: "The Olympic and Paralympic values live on at Willow Dene. Every single day our amazing, inspirational children continually defy the odds and make exceptional progress."

"Through individual approaches children engage in activities which incorporate their interests so all experiences are fun and stimulating."

Meanwhile, Willow Dene has been doing some special work with pupils to develop their senses, such as touching, tasting, hearing, seeing and smelling, to help them experience the world around them better.

The school said the programmes used are active, fun and engaging, and help to support individuals and groups of children to feel secure, happy, calm and ready to learn.

City cruise prize for class of enthusiastic learners

THE first stage of a programme to get parents more involved in their children's education turned into a cruise for pupils at Woodhill primary school in Woolwich.

Their celebration gift was an educational trip on the Thames by City Cruises from Greenwich Pier to Westminster which was enjoyed by the entire school over five days.

The programme, called Project Mondo included activities in five categories - learning, belonging, exploring, sharing and

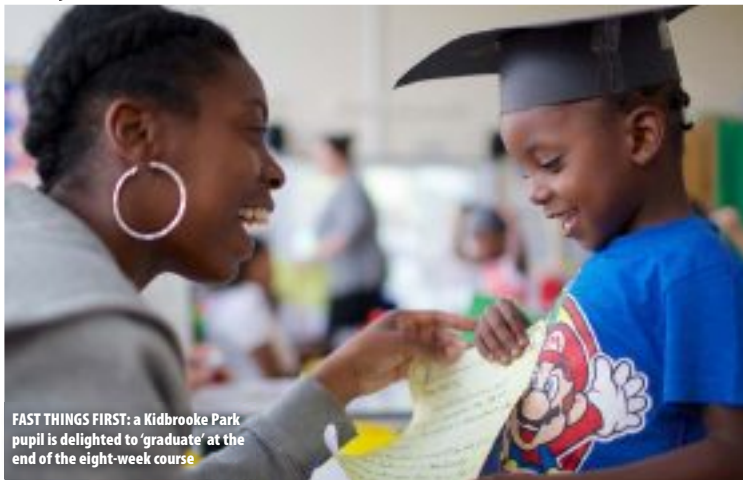

SIGHT SEEING: one group of Woodhill pupils enjoys the view from a river cruiser helping. Headmaster Graham Gibson said: "These trips are the reward for all the effort in making Mondo successful. With the generosity of City Cruises we've been able to make this a celebration to remember."

'Graduation' day for FAST-track pupils

SIXTEEN local families "graduated" - complete with mortar boards and certificates - from a pioneering education programme endorsed by the United Nations.

Parents and carers and their children aged three to eight - some also joined by their siblings - successfully completed the eight-week Families and School Together (FAST) programme at Kidbrooke Park primary school. The programme, funded by Morrisons and supported by Save the Children and the Royal Borough of Greenwich, involved a mixture of play and learning for families, aiming to improve links between home, school and community.

FAST activities, developed in the US, include emotional charades, communication games, and encouragement for families to spend quality time together. The weekly sessions also help support children's learning at home. Headteacher Mary Campbell said: "The FAST programmes have been an overwhelming success, showing improved attendance and children's attainment in basic skills. It's been a brilliant experience for all involved."

FAST THINGS FIRST: a Kidbrooke Park pupil is delighted to 'graduate' at the end of the eight-week course

Eltham Hill art works

STUDENTS at Eltham Hill school put on an exhibition of their fine art, photography, textiles and product design. More than 90 people attended the evening event on July 11, and visitors included the Mayor of Royal Greenwich, Cllr Angela Cornforth, who said: "It was a brilliant opportunity to visit Eltham Hill school and see the great art work students have produced." Principal Madeleine Griffin added: "We are extremely proud of the amazing artwork our students have produced for this exhibition. It is really nice to celebrate their achievements with this private viewing."

The numbers game

THE numbers all added up when pupils from eight primary schools took part in a maths challenge hosted by Plumstead Manor school in association with the United Kingdom Maths Trust.

Thirteen Year 5 and 6 teams competed in four rounds during the afternoon on July 10. Woolwich's Foxfield primary were the winners while two teams from Christchurch primary came second and third. The challenge is designed for exceptionally skilled students to challenge them, spark their interest in maths and develop problem solving skills.

School's secret garden gives food for thought

THE best-known secret garden in the borough welcomed celebrities from the gardening and food worlds to share their healthy living skills.

Henry Dimbleby, co-owner of Leon restaurants, and Levi Roots, creator of Reggae Sauce, were introduced to the special garden at Charlton Manor primary school in Indus Road. Also in attendance for the filmed food conference were Peter Seabrook, the Sun's gardening editor, and Blue Peter gardener Chris Collins. They saw the garden with its weather station linked to a computer, birdbox cameras, beehive and chicken coop. Nine-year-old Ronaldo Williams told GT: "The garden is really inspiring. I enjoyed being on the telly when we were filmed by the BBC. I really enjoyed growing the veg, especially the lettuce."

Packed classes for Poly's Saturday school

IT was a packed Saturday morning when prospective pupils went to Woolwich Polytechnic for a special open event.

It was a chance for them and their parents to tour the school in Hutchins Road, and be entertained by a samba band and a drama performed by children from local primary schools. Poly's school council put its road safety campaign on show, and different departments showcased students' work, and gave visitors the opportunity to make things or take part in experiments.

Meanwhile, students on the top achievers programme met senior lecturers and staff from a range of top universities including Oxford, Cambridge and the Royal Veterinary College, who ran workshops on choosing the right university and how to decide the best course or subject. Parents had a separate workshop to discuss student finance and how to encourage their sons and daughters to take a good career path.

The Poly was also celebrating its centenary on the day, Saturday July 13, and marked the occasion with a specially-baked cake.

● Students also had a chance to check out the new University Technical College in Woolwich which opens its doors for the new term in September. The college in Woolwich Road, Charlton, has been set up by the royal borough in partnership with the University of Greenwich, Transport for London and the Wates Group.

It's aimed at 14-19-year-olds interested in careers in engineering, construction and related industries and will run technical courses alongside GCSE and A level courses.

Innovation in Digital Media and Design

Be inspired and gain new skills just like 'Dayo', here at Ravensbourne, with our New Access to HE Diploma and Access to Digital Media courses:

These courses are aimed at adult learners returning to full time education with a view to pursuing BA study. If you have a broad interest in design or digital media, but are not sure which subject to specialise in, then this course is for you!

The course lets you experience the full range of design activities to help you assess your strengths and confirm aspirations for your next step into higher education or work. Designed for those who may not have previous or recent practice in art and design and may also want to change career direction, you will be nurtured within an already specialist design and media University environment in advance of meeting the standards required to learn at degree level.

The course will run on a Tuesday and Thursday evenings and all day Saturday. Initially this course will teach you the key design principles of freehand drawing, mark making, materials exploration, model making, digital process, idea and design development. This is followed by a combination of practical studio projects, workshops and traditional academic learning that will encourage you to experiment with design and digital technology.

Progression: Students from this course may progress onto various design degree courses specialising in disciplines such as Graphic Design, Interior Design Environment Architecture, Fashion Design, Fashion Promotions, Digital Photography, Animation and many other HE courses available at Ravensbourne.

For more course information, including how to apply, please look up the following link in your web browser:

Lost hamster!

A SHORT-SIGHTED hamster has turned up at a Charlton opticians. The lost rodent had been causing havoc at Page and Small for two weeks until it was finally caught last week. Now the shop's owners are trying to locate its owner.

Abi Page, from the store on Charlton Way told GT: "At first we thought it was a rat because there were a lot of strange goings-on."

"I came in one morning to find my packet of rice cakes strewn all over the floor, and the work experience saw something poke its nose out from behind the toilet. We've named him Houdini."

The long-haired fur-ball is being cared for by Abi's mother until the owner is found.

● Call the shop on 020 8293 9493 if you know who Houdini belongs to.

HIGH ACHIEVER: Dayo Bologun and tutor James Ward

Film fan to film-maker in three years

THREE years ago Dayo Bologun, 35, was a struggling music producer, unemployed, and just about to become a new father.

During a visit to the local job centre Dayo was told about an 'introduction to filmmaking' course brought to the area by the Royal Borough of Greenwich and Ravensbourne, a Higher Education institution located by The O2.

After being accepted to study at Ravensbourne, Dayo started taking steps towards building a career path he didn't think possible. Now, Dayo runs his own film production company called House of Push, he was the first student to be offered a full-time paid internship on the Ravensbourne IT team, and has directed a documentary feature film on the Nigerian film industry, which is being pitched to Channel 4. "Often, I sit and reminisce with my partner how very different things are for us now. To think that only three years ago the thought of completing a university degree was a far-fetched dream," he says.

"It's opened quite a number of doors for me and taught me to be entrepreneurial, more disciplined as a creative, to constantly think outside the box, and to have an impeccable work ethic."

The Royal Borough of Greenwich and Ravensbourne have been bringing digital inclusion short courses to the Greenwich community for four years. The adult and community learning courses, which are also supported by Greenwich Digital Skills, offer a range of subjects from building website sites to producing films.

Dayo encourages anyone contemplating Further or Higher Education to come to Ravensbourne. "You'll be taught by the best of the best in their given field, you will learn in a very relaxed yet stimulating and inspiring environment and time will fly very very quickly."

GOT THERE: members of Global Fusion Music & Arts and supporters celebrate their charitable status

We've made it!

Music and arts group celebrate charitable status

by Peter Cordwell

A TOP local music and arts group is ready to scale new heights after being granted charitable status.

Global Music Fusion & Arts (GFMA), based in SE7, celebrated becoming a charity at their beloved "home ground" of Charlton House, on Monday, July 23, when one of their biggest supporters, Charlton Triangle Homes, presented them with studio equipment worth £5,000.

Two days earlier Global Fusion had provided no fewer than 16 of the 40-plus activities at the taster day held on Charlton's Cherry Orchard estate, attracting more than 500 residents and visitors during the afternoon and evening.

"Becoming a charity will make a huge difference because we will now be able to apply for grants and raise funds to help our work in the community," said Global Fusion's indefatigable project leader, Louisa Le Marchand.

"We've had a long and wonderful relationship with Charlton Triangle Homes (CTH) and it's through them, Greenwich Council and other supporters that we have been able to make this big step forward after a lot of hard work by Global Fusion members and friends. It's become a fantastic family."

Cllr Peter Kotz, cabinet member for culture and creative industries, who helped to cut the celebration cake, said: "Louisa is well known to be very persuasive and I think it's good to people like her in our communities because they get things done."

"She rarely asks for money but is very good at creating tangible partnerships with the council and others, including greater involvement in the Greenwich Festivals."

Cllrs John Fahy and Janet Gillman, both former mayors, are regulars at Global Fusion's monthly events at Charlton House. Cllr Fahy said: "I was approached by Louisa about a DVD about 10 years ago and we have been in contact ever since. We have to book tickets for Charlton House events and much of that is down to Louisa's tireless enthusiasm."

CTH director Andrew Kimmance added: "The taster event on Saturday was the best we have run and we are so pleased that Global Fusion have attained this status. We are proud to be associated with them and know that they will go on to even more success in our communities."

Taster day goes down great at Cherry Orchard

FOR 10-year-old Lily it was bottle-making but Ayesha, also aged 10, said the percussion workshop was her favourite part of the day, writes Andrew Gray. If you were to ask another 50 people the answer would have been different at Charlton Triangle Homes' free 'Taster Day' on the Cherry Orchard Estate on Saturday, July 20.

The diversity of the programme - from drumming to drama and Tai Chi to circus skills - matched the diversity of the 500 people who attended from near and far.

Nine-year-old Faith, who attends Cherry Orchard primary school, summed it up for the masses of children who turned up: "I enjoyed everything! The moment I stopped one thing I saw another!"

Jasmine, aged 12, and 13-year-old Jasea had come all the way from Bristol at the invitation of Jasea's grandmother. They loved the drama workshop taken by local actor Chris Knott. Chris said: "They were great. They've got real talent."

Nigel Pierce, Charlton Triangle Homes' community chief, told GT: "We work with, not for, people on the estate. We've had several events here but this has to be the best one yet. If anyone comes up with a good idea we will support it and that's why we work so much with Global Fusion."

Artist Kofi Alvin's mask-making stall was one of the most popular. "I work in schools but today I'm experimenting with a set of African masks that I've designed. It's great to get kids involved, especially from different cultures." Sixteen of the activities, plus most of the facilities, were provided by Global Fusion Music & Arts. "We wanted to do something different this year and Nigel Pierce came up with this great idea," said Global Fusion's Louisa Le Marchand.

THE start of work on a new 452-bedroom hotel on Greenwich Peninsula is the latest piece in the regeneration jigsaw that will turn the massive 346-acre site into a thriving mix of homes, shops, businesses and visitor attractions.

The £121m 'InterContinental London The O2' hotel will be 19 storeys high and have a 3,000 sq metre ballroom, the largest in Europe. The development will also include a 23-storey tower of 100 serviced apartments. Hundreds of new construction jobs are set to be created over the two-year build, with more once work is finished.

There are plans to build more than 10,000 new homes. Of these, 3,800 will be tagged as 'affordable', and will include student and special needs housing. There will also be new schools and health centres and 48 acres of open space.

Eventually the Peninsula – said to be the largest regeneration project in Europe – is expected to provide work for 25,000 people, mainly in commercial and retail jobs.

Already home to the iconic O2 – now the world's most popular entertainment venue, with capacity for 26,000 people – the riverside site is rapidly becoming an important part of London's landscape.

It is the base for the Ravensbourne university college, where students can follow design and technology courses. It also attracts scores of companies to its business incubation programme which gives them access to facilities and support from students to help them take new services and products to market. They include software and gaming companies, architecture and fashion.

Ravensbourne works closely with Greenwich Digital Skills (GDS), a joint initiative with the council to provide vocational training, enterprise courses and community learning in design and digital media for local residents and small businesses.

Technology firm Cisco has signed a major deal with the council and Ravensbourne to set up an innovative digital hub on the peninsula, enhancing the area's growing reputation as south-east London's very own hub for technical innovation.

Meanwhile, small firms specialising in digital expertise are operating from Mitre Passage. The building, managed by the council, offers two top floors totalling 21,000 sq ft, an unrivalled package of facilities, exhibition space and panoramic views over the Thames.

The site offers firms the opportunity to collaborate with established like-minded businesses and with Ravensbourne.

Royal borough leader Cllr Chris Roberts said: "The development of the peninsula has been a long time in gestation and has gone through periods where it has stalled, not least with the residential development. We look forward to that moving ahead in the not too distant future."

"This hotel is a major opportunity to help with the regeneration of our borough and provide more jobs, which is crucial for us. It will add to the O2 arena and to the other attractions here in Greenwich."

ARRRRRGH! Charlie Torrison was a stand-out performer

Scottish Play has its day

THE only question at the end of the Macbeth community operas was about who would get the greatest ovation, not to mention the most whoops, whistles and hollers.

There's no doubt that stupendous Lady Macbeth (Miriam Murphy) would be ahead on any Gallup poll, closely followed by the hapless Macbeth (Quentin Hayes) and the honourable Banquo (Matthew Rose), while Macduff's (Charne Rochford) appeal to the people re the mad king's misdemeanours did it for me on a personal level.

But in our little corner of Blackheath Halls there were eyes and cheers for five very special performers. Charlton Park Academy students Charlie Torrison, Osio Orororo, Ketlin Namaganda, Lawrence Baker and Denzel Kuffour stood out for us among the 200 singers, actors and musicians in this seventh annual communal treat.

The pros were the engine room of the performance but something special happened every time the hall was full of the amateurs – the energy, the enthusiasm, the sheer joie de vivre.

Sixteen-year-old Charlie – who has cerebral palsy and is autistic – was inevitably our darling, expressing himself without a hint of reserve while still keeping within the discipline of a professional show. His mum Anne, who was in our little circle, said after the encores: "Charlie loves his music and, although he doesn't have the finer motor skills to actually play music, he listens to all sorts, especially lady singers. His favourites include Beyonce and Lady Gaga."

"When Charlie started school five years ago he could not sit through an assembly without being upset but the school has worked wonders with him and turned him into a very confident young man. Music and theatre are a big part of the school – it's a great way for the kids to express themselves and communicate."

Headteacher Mark Dale-Emberton was one of six staff in the sell-out audience. "We have a leading music teacher called Rachel Bevan and last year music got an outstanding Ofsted subject inspection. We've got our own band, pupils who write their own music and a variety of staff and young people play a range of instruments, and they've been interviewed on Radio 6."

"The idea is for them to transfer their musical skills into the rest of their lives. As for this wonderful Macbeth production, it's inclusion in action, isn't it? Charlie used to be introspective, now he's a star. He's got a fantastic voice and rejoices in what he achieves." And so did the rest of us. PC

SCENE

NOT long ago some amateur photographers got their Nikons in a twist over digital cameras. "It's not photography!" they screamed and stormed off into a red sunset.

The schism caused some shaky lenses among members of the Aperture Woolwich Photographic Society (AWPS) but eventually it made them more focused than ever.

Membership has grown from a dozen to 70-odd over the last four years and even has – wait for it – mobile phone photos among the 25 at its annual exhibition in Charlton House.

"To be honest, we were on our last legs over the switch from film to digital," avuncular chairman Marshall Pinsent told Scene. "But we had to embrace digital to survive. We had to repackage ourselves and now we're doing very well with enthusiastic members and a very hard-working committee."

The advent of cameras on mobiles sent a few more purists to Beachy Head but, again, AWPS took it all in its stride

"We have mobile phone pictures in this exhibition and they are fantastic," said 54-year-old Marshall. "Inevitably, the snobbery is back but the pictures we have here blow that out of the water."

"Everyone can take pictures now and they've become very disposable on social networking sites. But, then, a camera is just a tool really and it's there for everyone to capture their vision of things."

"The beauty, I think, is that in a world swamped by images there is still something about a good, still image that has a strength, a power all of its own. We have people who capture life on the street, natural history photographers and landscape photographers who take great pictures."

Society secretary Trudy Mackie, joined after seeing the society's stall at the Plumstead Make Merry festival five years ago. "It's so easy to get involved in a very friendly, very sharing group of people. I take my camera with me everywhere I go, always."

"Photography is capturing that moment you can never go back to and there's always a back story to the picture you take, and you never know what's going to turn up in front of you."

IT'S A MIST-SEE: a Turner-esque contribution to Aperture exhibition

The exhibition ends this week but moves immediately to the Elixir Gallery at Queen Elizabeth Hospital, Woolwich, for two months with a new selection of images.

"They get thousands of people going through there so we get a really good response," said Marshall. "We just have to be careful that there are no grim pictures!"

The new season starts on September 3 and new members can attend the first four meetings for free.

We would drive 500 miles more!

THEY had been on the road for more than two weeks when their trusty camper van limped into General Gordon Square at the end of a deaf-awareness road trip.

The duo who fell out of the doors, blinking into the bright summer sunshine were exhausted, but happy.

They had covered thousands of miles in the VW van, brightly painted with a map of the world. From rugged north Scotland to the wilds of Dartmoor, the team arrived back in the borough on July 24, completing the journey they had begun 17 days earlier at the Old Royal Naval College.

Kayleigh Goacher, and Mayuri Hirani, both from Plumstead were on board for the duration.

They visited schools and youth centres, and even supermarkets to meet other deaf people and share experiences through poetry, film and performance at the roadshow's 26 UK locations.

Mayuri, 23, said: "Sometimes we found deaf people telling us that they felt alone, but through sharing our poetry and our films, written by other deaf people with similar experiences, we were able to help people to understand that they aren't alone."

They also taught the basics of sign language through videos of pop songs.

Kayleigh, 17, a student at Shooters Hill post-16 campus, said: "Performing at so many venues has helped me develop my own confidence, and it was great that people shared their own poems with us too. It was nice that people took so much interest."

At the end of the tour in Woolwich, the pair read messages from people who had been contributing audience members from their time away, and released balloons with messages on.

Mayuri added: "I hope we have also helped hearing people, too, to give them confidence in approaching deaf people and trying to understand what they have to say."

GREENWICH HERITAGE CENTRE

Museum Late. Weds Jul 31
LATE-WORKING history buffs need not miss out this summer, as the Greenwich Heritage Centre keeps its doors open till 9pm this Wednesday. Museum Late gives visitors the chance to look at the current exhibition Freedom of Spirit, a display of the Suffragette movement in the borough, with a special performance by local choir the Woolwich Singers. The free event also has a DJ as well as talks from staff at the University of Greenwich.

The Singers are celebrating their one-year anniversary, and are appealing for more members of all backgrounds and abilities. The group perform every Wednesday at Woolwich Dockyard. More

Slavery Day

THE National Maritime Museum marks 2013's
International Slavery Remembrance Day on August 23.

The museum on Trafalgar Road is hosting family-friendly events through the day, which are free to attend. It begins at 11am and there are stories about the trade's local connections with actor Burt Caesar acting as MC for the day.

Dominique LeGendre giving a talk on black composers, and historian S. I. Martin reveals the hidden impact of the slave trade on a walk around Greenwich.

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 350

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

We are always looking to improve the service we provide.
We have now made some changes to the way we advertise properties.

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.
Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 7 August 2013 at midday and will include any Housing Association properties when available. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 4 August 2013.

educational activities in the Art Deco-style open-air pool. On dry land there were also a number of activities including CPR (Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation) skills, a quiz and life-saving techniques. They were taught important aspects of coastal and inland waters, from spotting danger to themselves to how to act in an emergency. GLL aquatics manager Suzanne Philpot said: "We were delighted when the ASA asked us to help launch the campaign again this year. The schools did not hesitate in accepting the invitation as their pupils learned so much last year. "Ensuring everyone is able to swim and be safe in and around water is of paramount importance and our initiatives this year have had a huge impact on pupils accessing our schools programme." Charlton Manor teacher Richard Wakeford told GT: "We were thrilled that GLL invited us back again this year because we think it's really important our children learn how to be safe and how to help others. It's been a fantastic well-run event with plenty of activities for the pupils." Cllr Peter Kotz, the cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "We're delighted that the ASA chose our borough again to get across these vital life-saving messages, especially with the long summer holidays upon us. "The message for children, parents and carers is that recognising dangers and gaining knowledge of water safety is just as important as being able to swim."

Every little bits helps in training

FOOTBALL FUN: two youngsters enjoying one of the FA Tesco Skills sessions

A FREE FA Tesco Skills session will be held at the London Marathon Playing Fields, Shooters Hill, on Saturday, August 31, from 10am to 1pm.

The session will give children from five to 11 high quality coaching from expert FA coaches in a scheme that has gone nationwide this summer.. The scheme, launched in 2007, has supported 21,500 teachers in 7,500 primary schools, along with over 1,000 Charter Standard clubs to provide first-class coaching for four million children.

"We started off with a handful of counties delivering The FA Tesco Skills programme," said Sir Trevor Brooking, the FA's director of football development. "That has expanded to 26 and now the funding is there for to take the programme nationwide, which is great news because the take-up from the youngsters has been fantastic over the last six years."

"The core values are about getting active, learning new football skills and enjoying the game, but we've also got the Skills Extra initiative which identifies talented boys and girls and gives them a chance to develop their football education."

It's a life-saver!

Charlton lido chosen for launch of water safety scheme

PUPILS from three local primary schools learned about the dangers of open water at the launch of the Amateur Swimming Association's Get Safe London life-saving scheme.

The launch was held for the second year running at Charlton Lido in Hornfair Park, and the pupils were from neighbouring schools Charlton Manor, Kidbrooke Park and Cherry Orchard.

They were taught a variety of water safety skills as part of a series of events organised this year by Greenwich Leisure Limited (GLL) and follows the 'Better Schools Water Safety Week' which ran from June 24 to 28.

The day, aimed to teach children about the dangers of swimming in open water, rivers and reservoirs, as well as highlighting that swimming is a sport that can save your life.

An action-packed few hours in the water included a host of fun and
